

LEGISLATIVE NOTES.

Representative McHenry Introduces a High License Liquor Bill.

Senator Voorhees Formally Declared Elected to the Senate—Other Legislative Matters.

George W. Ham, of Hancock County, is a candidate for Director of the Southern Prison.

Owing to the continued illness of Chairman Johnson, Senator Duncan, of Brown, was yesterday made Chairman of the Committee on Education.

Sensors Drake, Day, Lindley and Smith, of Jay, yesterday presented petitions for instruction in the public schools on the effects of alcohol on the human system.

A bill has been introduced to make the term of County Treasurers uniform, their terms to expire on the 31st of December in the year in which they expire by law.

The report of the Senate Judiciary Committee that the bill making all attorney fees clauses in notes illegal in the State has been made the special order for Friday at 2 o'clock.

The President of the Senate announced yesterday that he had caused copies of the joint resolution, regarding pensioning of officers, to be forwarded to our Senators and Representatives in Congress.

The House Committee reported favorably yesterday on the Krueger bill, amending the Constitution so as to increase the terms of all county officers to four years, and preventing the holding of the same office twice in succession.

Mr. McHenry has introduced a bill in the House fixing the license fee for selling vinous, malt and other intoxicating liquors in any county in the State at $500. For license to sell vinous and malt liquors only, the fee is placed at $300.

Senator Bailey, Hilligass, Duncan, of Brown; Thompson, Sellers, Emley and Moore have been appointed a Committee on Labor and Labor Statistics, and Thompson, Rahm, Null, Bailey, Schless, Day and Faulkner a Committee on Cities.

Senator Faulkner received a telegram yesterday from Hon. Will E. English, stating that he had tendered to Senator Voorhees the use of the Opera House on Monday, Tuesday or Wednesday next, for the purpose of addressing the Legislature.

With a salary of $2,500, a chief clerk and an assistant, with salaries of $1,200 and $800, respectively, and an expense fund of $400, as fixed by Representative Smith's bill, it looks as if the Superintendent of the State Institution would be able to get through almost any kind of weather.

Representative Reeves, of Bartholomew, has introduced a bill which provides that in trial of civil cases in Superior and Circuit Courts, the sheriff shall place eighteen members of the regular panel in the jury-box. The plaintiff and the defendant shall each have the right to reject three members of the jury so selected, and the remaining twelve shall constitute the jury to try the case.

A bill changing the school law in some important respects has been introduced by Representative Dittmore, of Owen. It provides that the Superintendent shall be elected by the Board of County Commissioners, and that his term shall be two years. The word "Superintendent" has been changed to "School Examiner," the old title. On motion 200 copies of the bill were ordered printed.

The sum of $50,000, appropriated for the State University, will be expended in the following manner: Steam heating, $4,500; gas fitting, $2,000; furniture, $2,000; show-cases for specimens, $2,000; grading and beautifying the campus, $2,000; chemical laboratory, $2,000; physics laboratory, $4,500; library, $15,000; museum, $7,000; botanical department, $1,000. Before the fire the college library contained 5,000 books; now there are 2,500; its museum was large and excellent and was wholly destroyed. The appropriation is asked for on the ground of necessity.

At 12 o'clock yesterday the Senate and House met in joint convention, a Lieutenant Governor Manson presiding. After calling the body to order, the chairman stated that the object for which the two bodies had met was to compare the votes cast in the Senate and House the day before for United States Senator. The returns were then read, and showed that Hon. Daniel W. Voorhees had received a majority of fourteen votes in the Senate and a majority of twenty-nine votes in the House. He was then formally declared elected United States Senator for a term of six years from the 4th of March next.

"Colored Voter" writes the Sentinel thus: "The action of the Democratic party in the legislative body assembled, through the agency of Senator W. C. Thompson, of Marion County, in the introduction of a State Civil Rights bill, and the simultaneous offering of a bill in the House by Hon. R. C. Pendleton, also of this county, to repeal sections 2,136 and 2,137 of the Revised Statutes of 1881, on the subject of emancipation, in order to rid the statute books of the State of Indiana of all obnoxious laws which discriminate against the colored people as a race, put to silence the oft-repeated assertion that the Democratic party is unfriendly to the colored man. As colored men are daily taunted with this base imputation, notwithstanding the tradition of the party, as promulgated by its founder, Thomas Jefferson, 'That all men are created free and equal, and endowed by our creator with certain inalienable rights, among which are life and liberty and the pursuit of happiness.'"

The weather. The weather office is being kept pretty busy this month, the cold wave signal being hardly taken in until it is ordered out again. The cold has been intense for several days, much to the disgust of those prophets who insisted that the weather was to be much milder for the balance of the winter.

A week ago the weather began with a storm or a few hours duration, there being less than an hour when it was not snowing, melting or raining. The cold wave has got out in time to get covered with sleet, and it stayed out all people thought it had been forgotten. Yesterday morning at 10 o'clock it was again ordered out and Chief Hazen announced that the cold wave was central in the Upper Missouri, moving easterly with an accompanying temperature of 15 to 20 degrees below zero. At 10 o'clock last night the office announced a degree below zero, which is about as near as it could get to the right figure. At least the thermometers throughout the city indicated at that hour

15 to 20 degrees below. The wind had almost ceased at midnight, and at 10 o'clock it was blowing only at three miles an hour, but at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon it registered thirteen miles an hour. The whistles of the engines about the city had that peculiar grating sound, as though they all had a bad cold. The squeak of the boot heel upon the snow of the street had a chilly sound, and the general verdict last night was that if the back of the winter was broken before the first of the month this community is willing to have its back broken no more for a year, lest it brace up again and show what it can do when aroused.

AMUSEMENTS.

"AN ADAMLESS EDEN" AT ENGLISH'S. To-night at English's Opera House the Lilly Clay Variety Company gives a single performance of "An Adamless Eden." The Buffalo Courier thus speaks of a recent performance: One of the largest and most fashionable audiences ever assembled at Music Hall visited Lilly Clay's "Adamless Eden" opera company last evening. The company is without doubt, one of the best and most novel that has appeared before a Buffalo audience.

The programme opened with a vocal and instrumental soiree by the ladies' orchestra and vocalists, after which the charming opera bouffe artist, Miss Alice Townsend, in vocal songs from the latest operatic European successes. The quartet of lady specialists, Miss Brooks, Miss Keith, Miss Bliss and Miss Morse, presented Harrigan and Hart's latest success, "Harry Little Children's Sunday School," in excellent style, and were very warmly received. The wonderful "The Marriage of Fritz," introduced by Miss Victoria North, is a novel and marvelous. The entertainment concluded with the London opera entitled "An Adamless Eden," which for years has been the reigning success of London and Paris. The music is charming and catching.

EMMET AT THE GRAND TO-NIGHT. To-night at the Grand Opera House the favorite German dialect comedian, Mr. J. K. Emmet, will open an engagement of three nights and Saturday matinee, presenting his latest successful play, "The Strange Marriage of Fritz; or, The Love of an Irish Girl." Mr. Emmet is in better health and spirits than for several seasons before, and is said to be singing in much better voice. Every-thing about his reception has been announced to an ovation. Speaking of his performance in St. Louis last week, the Globe Democrat says: "The unusually large Monday night house at the Olympic was explained by the presence of J. K. Emmet there as the star. The theater was crowded upstairs, and there was a large attendance of the first floor patrons. Emmet was in good shape, having had a clear month's rest, and he sang in a manner that was highly suggestive of his triumphs of the olden time. The whirling grace and ease of his movements were there still, and the white teeth and blue eyes showed through the frequent smile which broke upon the audience, as clearly and unmistakably as he shone through the well-known silhouette of the actor. Emmet got a splendid reception and all his songs were warmly received. His play has nothing new or meritorious of the domestic sort, with a quaint and amusing German, instead of a patriotic young dynamite, for the hero. The play is called the 'Strange Marriage of Fritz.' An Irish lass named 'Ellen McCarthy' is the winner of 'Fritz' heart, and the usual number of hard-headed Irish landlords and soulless magistrates. 'Fritz' manages, however, to retain possession of his college's land and his little farm, he inherits the will, and at the end of the piece is smoothly selling the matrimonial sea. It is unnecessary to say anything more about Emmet's acting than that it is just what it always has been, quiet, natural, effective and assured with a rich dialect. His principal songs are 'Love Is a Flower,' 'Come, Baby, Come,' 'Just Look on Dot Baby,' 'Tom, Call the Cows In,' and 'Lost Wife.' Miss Emma Fitzgibbon (leading lady) is a pretty and very fair actress. The company altogether gives sufficiently strong support for the piece. Emmet remains all week.

NOTES. Emmet's matinee prices will be the same as night.

The Zoo is giving a good bill this week to large houses. Matinee to-day at 2.

There is already much interest manifested in the coming engagement of "Orpheus and Eurydice" at the Grand next week. This charming opera bouffe has never been seen here.

Two grand piano concerts are announced to take place at Pfallin's Music Parlor next Monday and Tuesday nights. William H. Sherwood, the eminent American pianist, will appear.

The distinguished emotional actress, Maude Granger, in J. K. Tillotson's successful romantic military drama, "Lynwood," will be the attraction at the Grand Opera House the last part of next week.

"A Midnight Marriage," which comes to English's Opera House January 29, did a remarkably fine business in Cincinnati last week, and is now entertaining the Louisville theater-goers. William Redmond and Mrs. Thomas Barry, the stars, are becoming very popular. Mr. William R. Falls is here, representing the company.

The Dime Museum continues to entertain large crowds both afternoon and evening. They are giving one of the best shows of the season this week. Chang, the Chinese giant, is one of the principal attractions. He gives the children a "coady matinee" Saturday afternoon. All the recent differences between the proprietors of the Museum have been amicably adjusted.

Mr. Ed L. Bloom, in advance of Miles & Barton's "Orpheus and Eurydice" company, which is at the Grand the first half of next week, is in the city arranging preliminaries. The company is one of the largest and best on the road, comprising some forty artists, among whom are Louis De Lange and Daisy Murdoch. Sale of seats opens to-morrow morning at the box-office. No advance in prices.

IRON HIGHWAYS.

The Troubles of the Green Line Pool Not Yet Amicably Adjusted.

A Conductor Who Fights Bloodthirsty Tramps—Mr. Westinghouse's Latest Move—Other Items of the Rail.

The Vandell is handling a considerable amount of very fine ice to this city, which is taken from Lake Maxinkuckee.

There will be a meeting of the Executive Committee of the Chicago and Ohio River pool, at which time the Passenger Committee will make recommendations regarding a revision of the agreements.

Those of the Managers of Indianapolis roads who opposed the opening of the outside passenger offices at one time are beginning to realize that they were not "up to snuff," to use a rough expression, and the monthly reports of the local agents, compared with those of a little over a year ago, will bear out this statement. It is also true that rates were never so well maintained when the outside offices were closed as at the present time. Again, a large amount of business fell into the hands of scalpers that would not have gone there had the offices been supplied with a ticket case brimming over with pasteboards.

The Boston and Albany Railroad has furnished its Boston depot with a new style of train indicator. A clock dial is displayed in front of each of the four outward tracks, beneath which is a frame with four divisions, each occupied by a hand, painted black. By turning a crank or key, the indicator shows the names of the stations at which the train will stop. Each indicator has the names of seventy-eight stations, but only the names of the stations at which the particular train is waiting is to stop are displayed. The hand of the clock dial works automatically, so that "a simple twist of the wrist" shows in an instant the names of the stations and the time at which the train is to start.

A gentleman conversant with the affairs of the Cincinnati, Wabash and Michigan Road says there is every indication that this company will extend to this city during the coming spring. There is at present a traffic agreement between this road and the See Line, and connection is made for Indianapolis at Anderson, Ind., this being the terminus of the C. W. and M. It is quite probable that this extension would have been built last year had it not been that the Cincinnati, Wabash and Michigan, and other roads been materially reduced by the extreme dullness of business. The clouds are rapidly clearing away now, and there is a much brighter prospect for the railroads, and especially that that pass through a rich farming country like the C. W. and M. Several very rich coal mines were recently opened along the line of this road, and its lumber traffic much larger than ever before.

It is true that the Pennsylvania Railroad Company is grabbing all that comes within its reach, but it is also true that the Reading Railroad Company is doing the same thing. Both are violating the laws and both have fastened their fangs on Philadelphia. But they are alike only in degree. The Pennsylvania Railroad Company, while despoiling the city, is treating its stockholders to some of the spoils of the spoils. The Reading Railroad Company, while despoiling the city, is treating its stockholders to some of the spoils of the spoils. The Reading Railroad Company, while despoiling the city, is treating its stockholders to some of the spoils of the spoils. The Reading Railroad Company, while despoiling the city, is treating its stockholders to some of the spoils of the spoils.

A brother of George Westinghouse, Jr., a year or two ago, designed a spark arrester for an agricultural portable engine, and it has worked very satisfactorily in practical use. Mr. Westinghouse conducts agricultural machine works in Schenectady, N. Y., and he had good opportunities for perfecting his invention by adding the modifications that practice indicated to be necessary. His success in this line has made him a hero in the triumphs in wider fields, and he concluded that he could equip a locomotive with an appliance that would entirely prevent throwing of sparks. Some time ago he borrowed a locomotive from the New York Central to experiment with, and he is now striving to solve the problem he has undertaken, but he finds that controlling the throwing of sparks by the strong blast of a locomotive is a much more difficult matter than he supposed it to be. We understand the line Mr. Westinghouse is working on is to catch the sparks in the smoke-box by means of a series of plates which perform the functions done by the cone in the diamond stack.

"We are having more trouble with tramps this winter than ever before," said a passenger conductor on one of the Indianapolis roads to a Sentinel representative yesterday. "I can't remember the time when these gentlemen were more bold and nifty than they are now. Why it's almost worth a conductor's life to fire one of them off his train. Every time he does it he takes his life in his hand. I have been shot at by tramps this winter time innumerable, and one occasion recently when I attempted to eject a vag from my train, would have been stabbed to death had not the brakeman come to my assistance just in the nick of time. As it was I sustained no injury other than a few scratches, although my clothing was badly slashed and cut. The other day a whole gang of the most desperate looking scoundrels any human set ever got on got on my train and it was only with the assistance of the brakeman and a number of passengers that I got them off. They were disposed to fight at first, but when the passengers began pulling out guns they were cowed. Taking everything into consideration, smother, wrecks, collisions, falling bridges and worst of all, tramps, a conductor's life is not what you might call a happy one, but notwithstanding this I want to have my 'sit' a little while longer anyhow," and he sighed deeply as he boarded his train, which soon pulled out of the smoky depot, feeling no doubt that he was destined to become the victim of some bloodthirsty tramp ere the new day dawned.

The recent meeting of freight agents for the reorganization of the Southeastern Pool, as already announced, broke up without the accomplishment of that object. The reasons at the time were difference of opinion as to percentages and disagreement on the question of differential. It has become apparent since that there was still another and even a more serious reason why the pool should not be reorganized and one which it was not in the power of the gentlemen present at Thursday's meeting to overcome. This is the trouble which exists and has existed for some time in the Green Line Pool, which until recently controlled freight rates to all points south of the Ohio River and east of the Mississippi. The Southwestern Pool is a feeder of the Green Line Pool. The Iron Mountain hands over its freight from Green Line points to the Mobile and Ohio at Columbus. The Cairo Short Line makes direct connection at Cairo with the Illinois Central, while the Louisville and Nashville, striking the Ohio River at Evansville, joins the Green Line Pool at that point and continues into its territory. Among the other roads in the Green Line territory are the Cincinnati Southern, the Nashville and Chattanooga, the Western and Atlantic, and the East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia. The differences which have split up the Green Line Pool are not, strange to say, differences of opinion regarding percentages, but differences over the rates to be charged by the pool. As long as the Green Line Pool is divided, the Southeastern Pool can not well exist, and therefore the meeting of Thursday last was necessarily without result. As matters stand at present, the Louisville and Nashville and the Cairo Short Line are taking out grain, flour and other freight which, under the pool agreement, they seldom handled.

NEAR-SIGHTEDNESS.

A Product of Modern Habits and Practices.

M. Sarcy, who has written an instructive work upon the subject, maintains that he was born short-sighted, in spite of all that modern authorities assert to the contrary. He is willing to remain an exception to the rule of scientific lore, but he is resolute in his statement. The fact of his being myopic was revealed to him when a child.

"One day," he relates, "I put on my father's spectacles for fun. The sensation I experienced is still vivid in my memory, though fifty years have passed since it was produced. I was in the garden at the time. With a cry of joy and astonishment I discovered that the roof of foliage above my head, which had always appeared to me an indistinct mass of sombre color, divided itself into leaves and branches, through which portions of the blue sky were plainly visible. I was wild with joy, and I demanded incessantly that my parents should give me the spectacles to wear. 'And all my life I have' thus gone from surprise to surprise. Would you believe that at sixteen years of age I was able to read the words and habits of birds. I was terribly uneasy to know how any one could have found out all these details? 'For,' I said to myself, 'one never sees the birds; we only know that they exist by hearing them.' I, for my part, had never seen anything more than a black comma darting across a clear sky."

Turning to the question as to how one becomes near-sighted, M. Sarcy observes, first, that antiquity does not seem to have known what this defect was. You know," he says, "of what enormous dimensions the Greek and Roman theaters and circuses were. Thirty thousand spectators would sit at ease in the tiers. None of them ever had or felt the want of eye glasses. The Emperor Nero's was a rare case of short-sightedness among the men of antiquity. I imagine that it was with the ancients as it was with our sailors of the present day, who, accustomed from father to son, to look at objects in the distance, never reading, and letting sleep repose their eyes as soon as the sun sets, they acquired that sort of piercing sight that Fenimore Cooper likes to endow his savage Indians with."

In the present day, M. Sarcy continues, men wear their eyesight out in the day-time by excessive reading and writing, and in the night-time by gaslight and overstrained atmosphere. The proportion of short-sighted people, according to that celebrated oculist, M. Ferrin, whom M. Sarcy cites, has increased in the large Government schools from 30 to 50 per cent. in fifteen years. And in this calculation only confirmed short-sighted people are included; otherwise the proportion would be considerably greater, we are told. "Out of 100 pupils of the Polytechnic School, another oculist says, 'at least ninety are obliged to wear spectacles.' And in Germany, it appears, matters are still worse, because the Germans read more than we do, and their eyes are Roman characters. M. Sarcy warns his readers against believing in two popular errors with respect to short sight. The first, that such sight remains stronger than the normal sight as one advances in years; and the second, that it is wrong to wear glasses for this defect. Both of these assertions he declares to be absolutely false.
